

*Committed to Safety and Environment
In the Chemical Industry and related*

Who we are

COASHIQ, a non-profit business association, was born in 1985 with the goal to become a benchmark in the management of industrial safety and occupational health for chemical and related industries, and to work for both the welfare of workers and environmental sustainability.

COASHIQ is an ever-growing association.

Currently some 200 companies in the chemical and related sectors confide in our mission to provide a meeting point for all Occupational Hazard Prevention professionals who strive to improve health and safety conditions at work, physical installation safety and to achieve a successful integration of company activities in social and environmental surroundings.

COASHIQ has been distinguished by the Foundation for Occupational Hazard Prevention with the Special Jury Award.

How do we work?

We respond to the everyday needs of the Occupational Hazard Prevention technicians and companies by promoting active participation from all our associates. Inclusion in task forces, organization of technical seminars and publishing and diffusion of sector specific material are some of the ways our members can participate.

The main goal our activities constantly pursue is to provide global advice and training on prevention, safety at work, personal protection equipment, legal frames and job procedures within the chemical industry.

Our work commissions are organized by sectors, by territories or by general consultancy matters, which allow us to deal in depth with issues, concerns and needs shared by associate businesses.

COASHIQ produces six-monthly reports on accident rates from data contributed by member companies. This provides us with our own Comparative indexes and benchmarks to monitor positioning and evolution in the sector.

We incentivize the activity of enterprises making up the association by giving out annual COASHIQ Awards to Safety Management, a distinction for reducing occupational accidents and for improving global preventive action.

We facilitate immediate and straight solving of doubts arising at work for technicians in our association by means of the COASHIQ forum, whose use is reserved to representatives of member companies.

On the institutional level, we foster a policy of openness in our relationship with other entities -whether public or private - in order to promote an effective sharing of both information and common development opportunities, while monitoring compliance with current Competence and Data Protection regulations.

COASHIQ organisational structure

How can I join COASHIQ?

Any company in the chemical and related sector wishing to join may apply for membership by getting in touch with the association.

It will be up to the general assembly of COASHIQ members to accept and welcome the applying business as a 'fully entitled member'.

COASHIQ is a meeting point for a variety of businesses belonging to the chemical industry and related sectors such as pharmaceutical laboratories, oil, general chemistry, fine chemistry etc.
